One of the many ways that non-profits organizations succeed is because they have the ability to attract donors and volunteers to help others who need it. This is very important because it can be a factor in determining whether an organization will successfully achieve its mission and goals.

One of the best ways for non-profits to attract donors and volunteers is to raise community awareness, among all other things. For example, “All Hands and Hearts” volunteers were founded in September 2005 by philanthropist and businessman David Campbell to provide relief to residents in areas affected by natural disasters. Hurricanes is one of the natural disasters caused by nature. The problem is that no one could have predicted that so many people would be affected by the hurricane. However, although it was known that a Hurricane was underway, its magnitude could not be predicted precisely.

This is a problem for all victims of Hurricane Ida. Because they feel the aftermath, it is difficult to clean up the debris and go to regular daily activities by themselves. They experienced that they have lost everything, sometimes including their loved ones, and were a very traumatizing experience. Therefore, volunteers are needed to reduce this burden.
